

Private Telephone Sessions with Jon Shore

Imagine that you have a chance to sit in front of a mirror, a mirror that reflects back to you an honest reflection of your deep inner identity. A reflection that reveals to you the strength, peace, goodness, joy and wisdom that lie deep within you. He can also teach you methods of feeling all of this for yourself.

That is what this session is all about. Jon becomes your mirror.
It is an extraordinary experience.

Thousands of people have come to Jon for many reasons over the years; poor self esteem, depression, anger, fears, relationship issues, business advice, spiritual insights and to be uplifted are some of the reasons.

What to expect:

It is difficult to say how the conversation will go. You will have time to speak and to ask questions throughout your time with Jon. Jon will answer your questions and also look deep within you to share with you insights that may be important for you to know. Maybe your feelings and beliefs will be reinforced. Maybe they will be shaken. Private sessions with Jon are very intimate and personal. If you do not really want someone to see deep inside you, it is best not do this session.

Jon is not a psychic. He does not predict the future. What he does and how he does it cannot be labeled.

How to prepare for your session:

There is no formula for preparing for your session. It is important though to be in a quiet place. Do not attempt to have a phone session while driving in your car or sitting in a busy place with many people around. If possible give yourself a few minutes before the session to sit quietly. After the session it is best if you can take a few minutes to relax and digest the experience before returning to your day to day activities. Schedule at least an hour for the session itself. Jon does his best to keep it to an hour but now and then it could go over.
